RETAIL TRADE CODE APPROVED BY ROOSEVELT

Exemption Is Made For Little Stores In Smaller Places

Washington, Oct. 23 —(AP)—President Roosevelt, in approving the retail trade code last night, swung the NRA program into a new course by exempting both from the code and from the voluntary reemployment agreement, retail stores employing less than five persons in towns of 2,500 or less.

Making public the text of the code, Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson said that this was done because "our experience shows that the amount of reemployment and wage increase in these establishments is not enough to offset the hardship entailed."

"He is asking those who can do so to continue under the former rule," Johnson continued.

Exemption Chevron

"With all who do, the blue eagle remains. By all others the blue eagle with the exemption chevron (a white bar across the face of the emblem may be displayed).

"This should relieve the farmer or retail mark ups due to increased expense."

Johnson at the same time revealed that the President had approved a plan which will be put into effect at once by which local tribunals will be set up to hear any complaints which individuals wish to make of alleged retail profiteering.

"By these means," Johnson said, "we believe we can protect the farmer against price increases which do not come as a direct result of the cost of reemployment."

Admits Experiment

Johnson explained the reason for a minimum price control provision in the code as being due to the selling of a few items at a loss, especially by chain stores, in order to get people into the store. The provision as written into the code provides that no store under its terms may sell an article for less than its invoice cost plus at least a portion of the wages paid to employes in the store.

"This is frankly an experiment," said Johnson. "A distinguished committee is to be appointed at once to watch closely the operation of this code and to make recommendation on February 1."

Together with this explanation of the retail code, Johnson made public a letter from Roosevelt in which the Chief Executive informed him it was his understanding that there was nothing in the labor clauses of the industrial control law to interfere with the "bona fide exercise of the right of an employer to select, retain or advance employes on the basis of individual merit."

The price control or loss limitation provision of the retail code contains a declaration that use of "loss leaders" shall be an unfair practice, but that this does not prohibit a store keeper from selling an article without profit for himself.

To Allow For Labor

"But the selling price of articles to the consumer" reads the code, "should include an allowance for actual wages of store labor, to be fixed and published from time to time by the trade authority hereinafter established.

"Such an allowance for labor need not be included in the selling price of an article of food, or be applied by storekeepers doing business only in communities of less than 2,500 population (according to the 1930 census) which are not part of a larger trade area.

"Provided however that any retailer may sell any article of merchandise at a price as low as that set by any competitor in his trade area on merchandise which is identical or essentially the same, if such competitor price is set in conformity with the foregoing provisions.

"A retailer who thus refuses a price to meet a competitor's price as above defined shall not be deemed to have violated the provisions of this section if such retailer immediately notifies the nearest representative retail trade organization of such action and all facts pertinent thereto."

Johnson's statement accompanying publication of the code, while pointing to exemption of the small communities as a measure to help the farmer, asserted that "there can be no turning back on the reemployment program."

"It would be tragic folly," he said, "to turn millions of the reemployed on the streets on the argument that thus the cost of living could be reduced—no informed and fair-minded farmer asks for that."

Blackbird pies are not merely Mother Goose stories; in 1931, many poor fmailies found the birds to be very palatable.

Brings Famous Airship to U. S. For Visit at Fair

Dr. Hugo Eckener

Commander of the famous dirigible Graf Zeppelin, who brought his great airship to the mooring mast at Miami, Fla. today, enroute to Chicago and the Century of Progress Exposition, where it is due Thursday.

GRAF ZEPPELIN ARRIVED IN FLA. ON WAY TO FAIR

Miami Officials Told To Guard Airship And Her Crew

Miami, Fla., Oct. 23 —(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin, its silver hulk glistening in a brilliant sun, moored at the Opa-Locka naval base today for a day's stop on its flight from Rio De Janeiro to Chicago.

Riding gracefully at a 1,000 altitude, the Graf appeared over Miami from the southeast and headed direct for the Opa-Locka base. It was moored at 8 A. M., CST.

Gradually reducing its altitude as it neared the field, the giant dirigible, its five motors roaring smoothly, passed directly over the mooring mast 200 feet in the air.

Heading due north, the silvery bag swung in a wide circle to the right and came into the field dipping sharply downward.

When it had descended to 100 feet, guide ropes were dropped from the ship's nose to a ground crew of 300 men which quickly deployed on both sides of the bag and brought it to a halt in midair.

Greeted By Officials

Tugging at the ropes, the ground crew pulled the dirigible down to 50 feet of the round, when four more guide ropes were dropped. While Dr. Eckener, the dirigible commander, shouted orders to the men below, the crew carefully brought the craft to earth.

A single plane that escorted the Graf to the field glided in circles overhead while the landing was accomplished.

Dressed in a white suit, white shirt and black bow tie, Commander Eckener, standing at the controls, waved to the official welcoming party which included Mayor E. G. Sewell, members of the Miami City Commission and others.

Preparations then were made for the discharge of the 17 passengers before the dirigible was pulled into position and lashed to the mooring mast.

TAKE PRECAUTIONS

Tallahassee, Fla., Oct. 23 —(AP)—Possibiity of oppositionist demonstrations during the Graf Zeppelin's stay in Miami today caused the Governor's office to call on Sheriff D. C. Coleman of Dade county for full protection for the big German air liner.

"Am depending on you to take adequate precautionary measures to protect Graf Zeppelin and crew during their visit to your city," said a telegram sent over Gov. Dave Sholtz' name.

Similar telegrams also went to Miami city officials.

The Governor's office declined to say what information it had received that would indicate demonstrations might be made against the visitors. Gov. Sholtz is in Washington.

PLAN TO CONTROL PRICE FOR GOLD BOOSTS MARKET

Wall Street Opinion On President's Proposal Is Mixed

New York, Oct. 23 —(AP)—President Roosevelt's announcement of early inauguration of a plan to control the price of gold gave a decided boost to American financial markets today.

Wheat in the Chicago pit registered extreme advances of more than 4 cents, and shares in the New York Stock Exchange advanced $1 to more than $5.

There was no such frenzied flight of dollars into staples and shares, however, as there was when the United State abandoned the gold standard last April, or when the dollar broke severely in terms of other currencies last July.

This was attributed to the President's efforts in his address last night to reassure the nation that reckless inflation would not be permitted, particularly his statement that "government credit will be maintained and a sound currency will accompany a rise in the American commodity-price level."

Opinion Is Mixed

Comment on the new plan in Wall Street was decidedly mixed, with some orthodox sound-money bankers insisting that the step was so novel and untried as to be likely to impair confidence, while other financial experts felt the move was a sound endeavor to bring the dollar fluctuations under control, and would lead eventually to stabilization.

While the new plan of having an internal price of gold fixed through RFC purchases of newly mined metal on the basis of experimentation to find a proper level for the dollar, was not yet started, the dollar receded moderately in terms of other currences, and the price of gold yellow metal as fixed by the Treasury, based chiefly on the London market, was advanced 58 cents on ounce to $29.59.

An indication of inflationary fears in some quarters was seen in a moderate decline in the price of U. S. government bonds, but this decline was kept to relatively unimportant proportions, in contrast to some of their recent movements.

Proposed Schedule Of Pay For Civic Band Men Opposed

The proposed amendment to the city band ordinance, fixing salaries of members of the Dixon Civic band failed to meet with the approval of Dixon local, No. 525, A. F. of M. at a meeting held Sunday afternoon which was largely attended by members of the band organization. The following communication was forwarded to the mayor and city council today, outlining the attitude of the musician's union after considering the proposed amendment:

"At the meeting of local 525, A. F. of M. Sunday, Oct. 22, 1933, the members, after giving the matters in question due consideration voted unanimously opposing the proposed band amendment to the city ordinance as submitted to them. It was also voted that this local be placed on record as desirous of a local band conductor."

With this action on the part of the musicians' local, it was expected that the subject would again be open for discussion at this evening's regular council session.

E. R. Pool, Amboy, Died Sunday After Prolonged Illness

(Telegraph Special Service)

Amboy, Oct. 23.—E. R. Pool, aged 79, a highly respected citizen of Amboy, passed away at his home on Metcalf street Sunday afternoon after a long illness. Funeral services will be held at the home Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. Fred Harris of Oglesby, a former Amboy pastor, officiating, and with burial in Prairie Repose cemetery.

Mr. Pool was born in Earlville and for years engaged in the drug business, from which he retired on losing his hearing, to follow the vocation of painting and decorating, in which he continued for many years.

He is survived by his widow, a son, Perry, of Omaha, Neb.; two daughters, Mrs. Alice Vaupel of Amboy and Mrs. Gertrude Hargitt of Chicago; and six grandchildren.

Counterfeiters Of Small Coins Taken

St. Louis, Oct. 23—(AP)—Three men were held by Secret Service agents today on a charge of counterfeiting dimes and quarters.

Forrest B. Darling, ex-convict, was quoted by officers admitting he made the coins. Molds and other counterfeiting equipment were seized at a residence.

The other prisoners are Ronald C. Harrod, Galesburg, Ill., and Benjamin Wilson of St. Louis.

Bride Takes Own Life With Poison

Chicago —Threats of a 23-year-old bride, Dorothy Walgreen, to take her life were made good when she died after swallowing poison Sunday. Her husband, Theodore Walgreen, to whom she was married three months ago, and two companions of a few hours before her death, were held for questioning as police sought to determine a motive.

WILLIAM DOAK, FORMER LABOR SECR'TARY DEAD

Member Of President Hoover's Cabinet Died Today

Washington, Oct. 23 —(AP)—William N. Doak, Secretary of Labor in the Hoover cabinet and labor leader, died today at his home in nearby Virginia.

Doak, 51, died of heart disease. He suffered a severe attack about two weeks ago.

Born at Rural Retreat, in Wythe county, Va., he attended school at Bristol, Va., finishing a business college there.

He was the first Secrteary of Labor born in the United States, Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvanit and William B. Wilson, his predecessors, both being born in the British Isles.

Starting out as a trainman he became interested in labor questions and became General Chairman of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen of the Norfolk & Western System, in which post he served from 1908 to 1916.

From 1916 until he became Secretary of Labor about three years ago, he was the legislative representative here of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Recently he has made his home at McLean, Va. Funeral arrangements are to be announced later.

Appointment Opposed

Because Doak's union was not connected with the American Federation of Labor, his appointment by Herbert Hoover was bitterly contested by William Green, president of the federation.

Green praised Doak personally, but insisted the precedent of selecting Secretaries of Labor from the recognized American labor movement not be broken.

The high spots in Doak's cabinet record include his fight to restrict immigration and his campaign for a shorter work day and week for labor. He took the lead by inaugurating the 5-day week in his department. He embraced the philosophy that continuation of industry's mechanization must be accompanied by "a well balanced humanitarian and economic program to prevent us from reaching a state of social danger."

Hoover Took Advice

Mr. Hoover listened attentively to Doak in framing quotas under the present immigration law and in the deportation of aliens illegally in the United States.

A studious appearing man, Doak was known in railway circles as a master mediator. In 27 years of extraordinary activity as a leader of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen he had gone through every form of conference, mediation and arbitration proceedings, including wage and other cases before the United States Labor Board. In some instances he acted as sole arbitrator.

A stalwart Republican, Doak was active in the campaigns of President Harding, Coolidge and Hoover. He was director of the Labor Bureau of the Republican National Committee during the 1928 campaign and in 1932 made extensive trips urging the reelection of Herbert Hoover.

He leaves a widow, the former Miss Emma Marie Cricher of Ironton, Ohio.

Roosevelt's Address To Nation Failed To Bring Response From Farmers

"PERFECT CRIME" WAS SOLVED BY VICTIM'S SISTER

Science and Woman Combined In Denouement To Ghastly Murder

Chicago, Oct. 23 —(AP)—Science —and a woman— combined, police said today, to bring a denouement to Edward J. McCann's "perfect crime"— the slaying and dismemberment of his wife, Laurier, in Detroit, Mich.

McCann, described by authorities as a former operator of a Detroit liquir flat and by his friends there as an amateur student of criminology, was arrested yesterday, and confessed, Police Sergeant James Fitzgerald said.

Science entered the investigation by establishing the identity of Mrs McCann through finger prints, despite the fact her body was cut to pieces.

Recognized Killer

The woman who helped the police was Mrs. Loretta Hickman, McCann's sister-in-law. She recognized McCann as he stood in front of a relief station, last Friday. She and her husband, Harry, notified the authorities, but McCann disappeared before they arrived.

Yesterday Mrs. Hickman saw him again, and his arrest followed.

"Well," McCann was quoted by police as saying, "I didn't think they'd ever catch me. I didnt count on those finger prints because I didn't know about them."

The finger prints were taken in 1922 when Mrs. McCann encountered difficulty with the immigration bureau in entering the United States from Canada.

Described Murder

McCann said that he slew his wife early on the morning of last September 1, after quarreling with her over her fondness for liquor. When he struck her she attempted to fight back, he said, so he choked her and smothered her with a pillow. Twelve hours later Hickman and his wife, arrived at the McCann home for a visit.

"Laurier?" McCann was quoted as saying. "Too bad you missed her. She just went to Chicago to the World's Fair."

The Hickmans returned to Chicago, and McCann then went ahead with attempts to prevent identification of the body, he said, by cutting it to pieces with a knife.

Some parts of the body were found in various parts of Detroit.

J. Lewis Browne, Organist, Is Dead

Chicago, Oct. 23 —(AP)— Dr. J. Lewis Browne, internationally known organist, composer and Director of Music in the Chicago public schools, died of a heart attack at his home today.

He was born at London in 1866 and came to this country at the age of six. Educated in this country and abroad, he took his doctorate of music at the University of the state of New York in 1902.

Surviving are his widow; two sons, William A. Browne of Chicago and Lewis R. Browne of Sandwood, N. J.; and four sisters, two of them in Chicago, and Mrs. A. E. Krebs of St. Paul and Mrs. C. D. Troth of Duluth.

Mrs. Chester Parker Died In Culver, Ind.: Funeral In This City

William Odenthal today received word of the death of his sister Annie, Mrs. Chester Parker, formerly of Dixon, at Culver, Ind., together with information that the body would be brought to Dixon for funeral services and burial. Funeral arrangements cannot be made until after the party arrives, and will be announced later.

Settle Again Runs Into Bad Weather

Chicago, Oct. 23—(AP)—A probability of high winds tomorrow caused another delay in plans for the stratosphere flight ot Lt. Com T. G. W. Settle and Chester L. Fordney today.

The balloonists had expected to cut loose from the earth at 5 A. M. Tuesday, but the Weather Bureau warned today of a low pressure area moving rapidly from the Rocky Mountain region and a high pressure area advancing from Canada, likely to produce unsettled weather and winds of high velocity.

After a conference, Settle said the stratosphere expedition would be impossible for several days.

Farm Rebellion Facts At A Glance--

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Seeking new allies, leaders of the national farm strike today said they hoped to put a dent in the nation's food basket.

Milo Reno, president of the National Farmers' Holiday Association hurried to Chicago to confer with A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, in an attempt to win their organization's "moral support." He characterized President Roosevelt's assurances of last night that farm prices will be raised, as "pure sophistry."

* * *

A few produce trucks, bound for Sioux City, Iowa, were halted by pickets near James, Iowa last night, but it could not be learned if the picketeers were Holiday Association members. There was no disorder.

Wheat continued to move out of North Dakota despite an embargo order by Governor William Langer. Activities by county sheriffs in an attempt to enforce the order, were expected.

From North Platte, Neb., came word that Keith Neville, would withdraw his resignation as chairman of the Nebraska NRA Board, if employers of less than ten persons are exempted from the provisions of the recovery act. He said there had been no indication whether his proposal would be accepted.

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The national agricultural strike, already marked by picketing faced its first crucial test at the market centers of the country today, and apparently is to continue despite President Roosevelt's assurances of higher farm prices.

The information that the buying holiday will not be halted was given out by Milo Reno, president of the National Farmers' Holiday Association, last night before his departure for Chicago where he said he planned to confer with A. F. Whitney, head of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, in the hope of enlisting "moral support" from that organization.

Reno said that President Roosevelt's statement last night "contained no ray of hope there will be change in policies which so far have proved ineffective.

"The President failed to even mention cost of production. We're not going to stop this battle until we get what we want and have demanded—cost of production."

Promised Support.

Reno said that the Continental Congress of Workers and Farmers and the Technocratic Federation of the World for Industrial Democracy had proferred their cooperation in the strike, and that he was confident the farmers themselves would join the non-selling movement in "great numbers." Thus far, the leaders in but six of the 21 states of the Holiday Association have officially proclaimed a strike. They were Iowa, North Dakota, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Minnesota and Oklahoma. In two others—Colorado and Michigan—opposition was expressed.

From Otto Pfeiffer, president of the Nebraska-Iowa Cooperative Milk Association, came the announcement that his group will oppose attempted curtailment of milk shipments to the Omaha market.

About 75 men began picketing last night on a highway near James, Iowa, in the northwestern part of the state, and turned back several trucks of farm produce enroute to Sioux City. It was not determined whether they were Farm Holiday members.

ECHOES OF THE LINDBERGH CASE HEARD IN BOSTON

Police In Hub Arrest A Man Who Resembles Mystery "John"

Boston, Oct. 23—(AP)—Echoes of the Lindbergh kidnaping were in the air today as Boston police delved into the past of John Gorch.

Sergeant Arthur M. Tiernan and Inspector William J. Bonner, who arrested him yesterday in a Back Bay apartment, noted a strong resemblance to the mucn sought "John" of the Lindbergh kidnaping—the person to whom Dr. John F. Condon declared he paid $50,000 ransom.

Meanwhile telegrams sent to the police of several cities brought replies indicating he was wanted for questioning in far spread places.

Deputy Superintendent of Police James McDevitt, said he communicated with Captain Norman Schwartzkopf of the New Jersey State Police, and that the New Jersey officer had been seeking Gorch for questioning since the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped March 1, 1932.

Tiernan and Bonner pointed out what they considered a "remarkable resemblance" to the "John" to whom Dr. Condon, "Jafsie" of the Lindbergh case, paid ransom money one midnight.

HAD BEEN CLEARED

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 23—(AP)—Captain John J. Lamb of the New Jersey State Police said today that John Gorch, arrested in Boston was one wanted for questioning in the Lindbergh kidnaping case but had been cleared of any connection with it.

Lamb said Gorch, also known as John Hankowski and Tedor Sydorak, lived in Hopewell township about the time of the kidnaping, and was sought when subsequent checking showed he had moved. He was detained about a year ago in Springfield, Vt., Lamb said, by Chief of Police Burby, who checked Gorchs story with New Jersey State Police.

Lamb said it was then determined Gorch had no connection with the Lindbergh case.

Minion of the Polo Methodist church will conduct the final rites at the grave.

GUS WINKLER'S WIDOW TRIED TO DIE LAST NIGHT

Attempted Suicide By Gas: May Have Been Marked For Death

Chicago, Oct. 23 —(AP)— Was Gus Winkler's widow marked for an underworld death?

This question was brought up today by Colonel Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago Crime Commission, as result of the finding of the 37-year-old widow, Georgette, unconscious in her apartment last night with burners of a gas stove turned on.

"It is not too fantastic to believe that her suicide attempt was the result of gangland intimidations," Col. Chamberlin said as he pointed out that she was found on the eve of the reopening of a Coroner's inquest into her gangster husband's slaying two weeks ago.

"I believe Mrs. Winkler has valuable information which I hope she will reveal at the Coroner's investigation," he said. Col. Chamberlin is a member of the jury.

Found By Friend

Mrs. Winkler was found by a friend who hurriedly called police and firemen who worked over her for a considerable time with an inhalator before she was revived.

"Gus, I want to die; I want to go with you," the police quoted her as saying. A few minutes later she turned to Dr. Oscar Cliff, called to attend her, and said, "You're not doing me a favor by letting me live. I want to die." Had aid arrived a few minutes later she probably would have.

The friend who came to her rescue was Miss Bonnie White, identified by one morning newspaper as the wife of Fred (Killer) Burke, pal of Winkler and now serving a life term in the Michigan penitentiary at Marquette for murder.

Telephoned Friend

She told police Mrs. Winkler, who had brooded since her husband was shot down on a street by a barrage of bullets two weeks ago, had telephoned her last night and asked her to come over in an hour as "I'm going on a long ride."

Suspecting something was wrong Miss White hurried to the Lake Shore Drive apartment detected the odor of gas in the hall, notified the manager and authorities who entered with a pass key.

While Mrs. Winkler still lay critically ill today from her attempted suicide the hand-picked Coroner's jury began prying away the curtains of the underworld to solve the murder of her husband.

Seek Motives For Murder

Police, politicans and gangland friends of the late Gus Winkler crowded into a city hall courtroom as the Coroner reopened his inquiry, determined to find the motives back of a series of assassinations.

Chief of Detectives William H. Schoemaker, an early witness, testified Winkler had told him a week before he died of 111 shotgun wounds that he was in business at 225 East Superior Street. That was the address of the "225 Club," owned by Edgar Lebensberger—who committed suicide by pistol wounds a week before Winkler was slain and just a few hours before he was indicted for the $250,000 mail robbery of last December.

Schoemaker said he could not tell whether Winkler was in the beer or gambling business. He never investigated gambling except on special assignment.

Judge Seeks "Leak"

While the inquest was in progress, Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson ordered an inquiry into the "leak" of the mail robbery indictment. Lebensberger specifically had been indicted with his credit manager, Joseph Sands, and former State Rep. John J. "Boss" McLaughlin for possessing and selling $28,000 of the stolen bonds.

Judge Wilkerson was startled today to learn that Lebensberger had offered to surrender a day before the indictment was returned. Postal authorities had refused the offer, and five hours before the indictment was handed down Lebensberger shot himself.

Question Commissioner

County Commissioner Charles H. Weber, at the doorstep of whose beer distributing plant Winkler was cut down by shotguns, was placed on the stand at the Coroner's inquest and jurymen, who included Col. Chamberlin questioned him about his knowledge of Winkler.

Had he any idea why Winkler was around his beer depot

"No, I have no idea," Weber said.

"Isn't it singular that he was shot right in front of your place?"

"That's something I cannot understand. If I could tell you anything about it, I would." He said

Machine Gun Bandits Shoot Up Minnesota Town, Rob National Bank and Get Away With $32,000

Brainerd, Minn., Oct. 23—(AP)—Five machine gun bandits today overpowered fourteen persons in the First National bank, shot up the inside and outside of the structure and adjoining buildings, and fled with $32,000 in cash.

None of the patrons and employes imprisoned in the bank was hurt, but at least four pedestrians were in the line of fire while bullets spattered against buildings and perforated automobiles as the raiders car roared out of town, their weapons spitting fire.

Coming into town about daylight, the raiders went to the bank, trapped the janitor and a guard as they came to work, and took up positions inside and outside the bank which they held nearly three hours.

Three of the bandits donned masks after they got inside and ascertaining that the time lock protecting the vault safe, which contained the bulk of the cash, was set, took into custody employes and officers as they entered.

Lindberghs Braved Treacherous Coastal Fog In Short Flight From England To Irish Free State

BULLETIN

Galway, Irish Free State, Oct. 23 —(AP)—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh landed here this evening after a short flight from Southampton, England.

Southampton, England, Oct. 23—(AP)—Braving a treacherous coastal fog, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh hopped off on a flight to an unknown destination early today with only a few sandwiches besides the rations they always carry in their plane.

There was a growing belief that their destination was Ireland, but neither the Colonel nor his wife would confirm and officials at the Woolston airdrome did not know.

However, the nature of the famous flying pair's food stock indicated they planned only a short trip.

After the departure it was stated in a quarter believed authoritative that they were flying to Galway, the Irish Free State.

Harrisburg Drunk Died Soon After Being Hit In Jaw

Harrisburg, Ill., Oct. 23 —(AP)—An inquest will probably be held tonight in the death of Jess Neal, 21, in the city jail twenty minutes after he was struck on the jaw by Acting Chief of Police Harry Moyer.

Moyer said Neal resisted arrest for intoxication in front of a beer garden, Saturday night. Moyer was not arrested but an investigation of the death was started.

An undertaker said a bruise on Neal's jaw was the only sign of injury and that no broken bones were apparent.

SCOUT CRAFT DISPLAY

Through the courtesy of R. A. Rodesch, Boy Scout troop, No. 89 is presenting a very clever window display of Scout craft this week in the Rodesch building on Galena avenue. The display consists of various interesting collections, totem poles, miniature camp scenes and Indian handiwork in a very attractive manner which is arranged to attract a great deal of attention.

The regular weekly Scout meeting of Troop 89 will be held Tuesday evening at 7:15 at the Christian church. As this is a special meeting with a Scout board of review on the program, all Scouts and committeemen are requested to be present. Scouts are asked to wear necherchiefs.

Two Convicted Of Harboring Gunman: Face Prison Terms

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 23—(AP)—One defiant, the other broken in spirit, Langford Ramsey and John Tichenor faced two and a half years in prison today for having given refuge to George "Machine Gun" Kelley and his wife.

"I am not through fighting until I prove my innocencee," Ramsey, young attorney and former brother-in-law of the gunman said. Tichenor, his eyes filled with tears, would say nothing.

The jury in the United States District Court that convicted them took the case at 12:45 A. M., Sunday and returned its verdict in 15 minutes.

NEW JOINT FOR CONCRETE ROADS NOW PERFECTED

State Dept. Describes Experiments With Several Types

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 23—(AP)—Acting Director Robert Kingery of the State Department of Public Works and Buildings today issued a statement describing "the development in 1933 of the expansion and contraction joints, eliminating pavement blowups and cracking," as a major forward step in highway construction.

Only two steps in highway development have been more important, Kingery declared, naming them as the pavement type evolved through the Bates road tests of 1921 and the adoption of 1930 of scientific concrete mixtures, with materials proportioned by weight instead of by volume.

Kingery said experiments on the subject were started last year, adding:

"By mid-summer of this year, the efficiency and effectiveness of one of the ten types of expansion and contraction joints being tested by the Highway Department had been demonstrated conclusively and it was approved by the Highway Department.

Competitive Materials

"Being a patented article, the Department, conforming to the administration policy of using competitive materials, prepared a specification which is open to any product which meets the requirements the engineers have found to be essential. The department continued to assist in the development of other joints of equal merit, one of which has been thoroughly tested on a ten-mile section built this year, and which is now in production."

The joints are placed at intervals in hard roads to provide for expansion and contraction of the pavement. Kingery said a third of the types of joints can qualify under official specifications.

The deceased was manager of the Postal Telegraph Company at Richmond, and was very active in church and Y. M. C. A. affairs. He had been ill, but resumed his duties about a week ago, when he apparently suffered a relapse. Dr. Stansell expects to leave at noon Tuesday to attend the funeral.

SIDESWIPED TRUCK

Ben Cassio, 1651 West Sixty-ninth street, Chicago, driving east on the Lincoln Highway Sunday evening about 8:30, sideswiped a truck loaded with live stock, which was enroute to Chicago. One calf was killed and a cow was injured. The truck was driven by Elwood Ortgiesen and belonged to Dan Ortgiesen of this city. Cassio's car was damaged to such an extent that it had to be brought to a local garage. His father came out from Chicago this morning and settled for the damages incurred in the collision.

OBJECTIONS SUSTAINED

County Judge William Leech this morning sustained objections to local improvement ordinance No. 281, which provides for an athletic field in the west end of the city, the court ruling that the objections to the proposed improvement were sustained for the reason that no vote had designated as to whether or not the taxpayers of the city desired the improvement. Judge Leech contended that the project was not a local improvement, but a public improvement and that the court was without jurisdiction to proceed with the authorization of the project as a local improvement.

LOCAL TURKEY GROWERS WILL GO TO HAVANA

State Meeting Planned To Promote Business

Tom Mitchell of this city and Earl V. Kennedy of Amboy of the Mitchell-Kennedy turkey farm, and County Farm Advisor C. E. Yale of Amboy will go to Havana, Ill., Tuesday, where they have been invited to attend a meeting of Illinois turkey growers. The meeting will be held at the Cimco farms, owned by the Chicago & Illinois Midland Railway Company, four and one-half miles from Havana.

Harry Lally of May township and Frank Keane of this city, also prominent Lee county turkey raisers, will also attend the meeting, which has been called for the purpose of promoting the sale of Illinois-grown turkeys and to discuss other mutual problems of the raisers. Mr. Kennedy of the Mitchell-Kennedy farm, which is located west of Amboy on the Sterling-Amboy road, will be one of the speakers on the program. He will address the raisers on his experience in raising turkeys on the farm which is now stocked with more than 3,600 birds.

H. H. Alp of the poultry extension department of the University of Illinois, will be another prominent speaker on the program. Prof. Alp recently visited the Mitchell-Kennedy turkey farm near Amboy, where several pictures were taken which will be shown at the Havana meeting tomorrow. The Mitchell-Kennedy farm is clasified among the largest in Illinois and is one of the most successful in the raising of large flocks of birds each season.

ICELAND'S VOTE ON PROHIBITION HELD SATURDAY

Definite Result May Not Be Known for Week At Least

Reykjavik, Iceland, Oct. 23—(AP)—The doom of prohibition in Iceland is sealed, according to prevailing opinion in Reykjavik, but figures to support the claim will not be available for at least a week and perhaps longer, until all returns from Saturday's repeal elections are in.

In Iceland even election news travels slowly from scattered villages and through counties subdivided into voting centers unconnected by telephone and dependent upon slow mail.

Rural voters in Iceland, like rural voters the world over, sometimes take an independent line, it was pointed out here today.

Politics also was playing a part in the prebiscite. The Icelandic Labor party has a prohibition plank and labor, it was admitted, might prove to have voted prohibition. Isafjord, a Labor stronghold, has voted in favor of retention of prohibition.

In the Reykjavike district, regarded as indicating countrywide sentiment, repeal was approved by a more than 2 to 1 vote.

ROCKEFELLER'S STUDY OF HARD LIQUOR IS OUT

Three Points Stressed As Methods Of Control Of Business

New York, Oct. 23—(AP)—John D. Rockefeller Jr., laid in completed form before the public today the report of his study into the problems of liquor control after repeal—a report which expressed the hope that legalized sale of alcohol might mark the beginning of real temperance.

The study, of broad sociological nature, regarded as its prime objectives the abolition of lawlessness, and the focusing of all forces of society on development of self control and temperance in the use of spiritous beverages.

The study was undertaken by Raymond B. Fosdik and Albert L. Scott at Rockefeller's request a year ago when Rockefeller deserted the traditional family position to come out for repeal. Short installments have been published previously.

Three Points Stressed

Three points are stressed in the report—state control of liquor sales, elimination of profit motive, and taxation primarily for social contral rather than revenue.

A strong position was taken against unrestricted liquor advertising. As a check, creation of an advertising code by the state authority was recommended. Unless some "reasonable" restriction was enforced, the report predicted, all liquor advertising eventually would be prohibited.

"Advertising," it stated, "artificially stimulates the demand for alcoholic beverages. x x x all of this is inconsistent with any idea of restricting sale of liquor to an unstimulated demand."

CLEVER BOXERS WILL APPEAR IN THURSDAY CARD

First Indoor Bouts Of Season Announced By Hooker

The committee in charge of the boxing show to be presented Thursday evening at the Ottawa avenue arena, under the sponsorship of Dixon post, No. 12, American Legion, today announced the double windup feature which brings together some of the best amateur talent in the northern section of Illinois. George Dungey of Bloomington is matched to make his first appearance in the local ring opposing Joey Rossini of Kewanee in the 135 pound class.

Dungey was a Golden Glove winner on the Peoria team a year ago and during his career has won over Al. Yeager of Peoria, a popular boxer with the local fans and also from Geno Salvatore of Spring Valley who has fought some fine battles before the local crowds. He is classified as among the best in his division in central Illinois. Rossini, his opponent, was a member of the Davenport Golden Glove team. He has been fghting for several weeks in Chicago and only recently returned to his home in Kewanee for the winter.

The semi-windup battle will bring together "Kid" Dahgfege of Spring Valley who is matched to meet Bert Yountz of Bloomington in the 150 pound division. The latter recently lost a close decision to Keith Graves of Peoria, who has appeared several times on local cards.

The other bouts on the card will be announced by the committee of the local Legion post tomorrow. Jack Sharkey of this city has been secured to referee all of the ouuts. The show will be held as the opening of the winter season at the Ottawa avenue arena Thursday evening of this week, the first bout starting at 8:30.

Party Honored Miss A. Hubbell

Mrs. Clarence Sproul was hostess Saturday evening at a delightful party honoring Miss Alethea Hubbell, who is to become the bride of Samuel Blimling in the near future. There were two tables of bridge. Mrs. Thos. Erwin won the favor for high honors; Miss Edith Ayres received second favor and Miss Lucille Trautman the consolation favor.

A tempting luncheon was served, the decorations and the menu being in Hallowe'en colors. Autumn foliage and flowers graced the rooms in the Sproul home.

A linen shower for Miss Hubbell was one of the delightful features of the evening, and she received many nice pieces of linen for the home to be.

Hallowe'en Refreshments

(Served afternoon or evening)

The Menu

Hallowe'en Salad Witchery Rolls
Spooks Dessert
Orange and Green Gum Drops

Recipes For Eight

Hallowe'en Salad

8 rounds pineapple
8 halves canned peaches
1 cup mayonnaise
2-3 cup yellow cream cheese
1-8 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon paprika

Mix cheese, salt, paprika and one teaspoon of mayonnaise. Chill mixture. Take teaspoons of cheese mixture and shape into balls 2-3 inch in diameter. Flatten each end, and with back of knife shape little grooves in balls. Insert green stems of bits of parsley and little cheese "pumpkins" result

When ready to serve arrange the pineapple slices on lettuce placed on salad plates, preferably green. Top with peaches, hollow side down. Surround with mayonnaise and add "pumpkin" to each service.

Witchery Rolls

18 slices fresh white bread
5 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons chopped green peppers
4 tablespoons chopped celery
2 tablespoons chopped pimientos
1-8 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon salad dressing

Cut very fresh bread in thin slices. Use sharp knife and cut off crusts. Mix rest of ingredients and when soft and creamy spread on bread. Roll up each slice, wrap in waxed paper. Store in bread box until serving time. Arrange rolls log-cabin fashion on tray and serve.

Spooks Dessert

8 rounds sponge cake
1 pint orange sherbet
1 pint rapsberry
1 cup whipped cream
8 black cat stickers

Arrange cake rounds on white paper doilies placed on serving plates. Top with portions of orange and raspberry sherbets and spread with whipped cream. Insert black cat stickers, serve at once. Paper doilies can be cut from white tissue or crepe paper.

What Girl Scouts Did In One Month

TROOP 1, (The Gypsies)

Troop 1 holds its meetings at the E. C. Smith school. All girls of 7th and 8th grades at St. Mary's, E. C. Smith, or South Central schools are eligible. Miss Dorothy Dodd is captain. All inquiries concerning this troop should be addressed to her at 1010 W. Third street, or the E. C. Smith school. Miss Anne Hoffmann and Miss Mary Ballou act as lieutenants, assisted by Miss Dorothy Hoyle, a junior leader.

The membership of this troop is now 53 girls. Twenty-three girls are working for the second-class badge; eighteen for the first class bade; and two girls possess the first class badge. There are new new recruits who are busily preparing for the tenderfoot requirements.

The most outstanding accomplishments of the past month were the overnight hike and the choral stunt at the Recognition Banquet.

Twenty nine girls and their leaders were guests of the Frank Hoyles at The Lodge on Rock River. Nearly all the girls hiked the six miles from Dixon to the lodge. The kitchen patrol went ahead to start fires and prepare food. Their cooking success was proven by the empty larder. The food for the two meals cost only twenty-two cents per girl. An example of Girl Scout thrift was put to test. The evening passed quickly with songs, stunts and toasing marshmallows before the fireplace.

Everyone arose early to pack blanket rolls, cook breakfast, clean up, and be ready to leave for the badge classes in Dixon. We heard that a number of the troop had an impromptu hike and nearly missed the last auto back. Also it is rumored that the girls upstairs almost slept through that midnight patrol meeting they were planning. We still wonder who spilled the water on Lois Marie?

Troop 2.

Troop 2 is open to all 5th and 6th grade girls at St. Mary's and the E. C. Smith schools, where the meetings are held. Miss Ruth Kerz is captain. Inquiries about the troop may be addressed to her at the E. C. Smith school or 615 Crawford Ave. The lieutenants are Miss Helen Parker and Miss Elsa Fischer. Miss Leon Kriem and Miss Betty Haines are the troop's Junior leaders. Although this is a new troop, it already has a membership of over thirty girls and a high attendance record. With such pep and vigor, this troop will soon be a leader. Nearly all the girls are new recruits with a small percentage of tenderfoot Scouts. They have been busy organizing and learning the rules of the Girl Scout game. At the last meeting patrols were organized and temporary leaders elected. A troop scribe, two shoppers, and a reporter were decided upon. All in all, it was an exciting gmeeting. Now they are ready to get down to work and play!

Troop 4 (The Foresters)

Troop 4, is back at its old meeting place in the North Central school. After summer vacation it was like getting home again and so very pleasant to find the captain, Miss Eleanor Clayton, 322 Peoria Ave., and the lieutenant, Mrs. John Lockett waiting to begin Scouting again.

This time there was a new lieutenant, Mrs. Gavin Dick and two Junior Leaders, Misses Dorothy Goeke and Jane Hayer to share their fun. They have redecorated the large bulletin board in great style. Every requirement to become a Tenderfoot Scout is shown. The knot board is especially fine. No wonder, because this is the troop that gave such a splendid demonstration of knot tying at the banquet.

The troop membership was twenty-five according to the latest reports and will surely continue to grow. Even he new recruits seem like regular Scouts, but then, most of them "flew up" from Brownies. The weather man has not been very kind to them. Each meeting that they have planned a hike to the Girl Scout Cottage has been rainy. Better luck next time!

Troop 5 (The Indians)

Troop 5 has a new captain this year, but she is an "old hand" at Scouting. Miss Helen Edwards, 516 N. Galena, leads this troop and will be glad to answer any inquiries of girls wishing to join. Miss Louise Brewster, the lieutenant, returned again. The troop membership is now eighteen girls, but more are returning each meeting.

Even in one month this troop has had eough activities for two with a breakfast hike which was a months. The troop year started off great success. According to reports some of the girls have tremendous appetites. Recently the troop had an afternoon skating party. At the Recognition Banquet a first aid stunt proved how capable the girls really are. After portraying an accident they successfully treated the patient and prepared a stretcher. We hope the patient recovered and can now use her ankle, arm and head.

Troop 6 (The Loyal)

Troop 6 is open to all 5th and 6th grade girls at the South Central school, where the troop has a room all its own. The new captain is Mrs. E. G. Sherill, 403 East Second st. Miss Lola Glessner has returned this year as lieutenant. Two Junior Leaders, Misses Mary Hofmann and Catherine Buchner assist in the troop. At the present time about twenty girls attend meetings. These are mostly Tenderfoot Scouts and new recruits. Already they have shown splendid Scout spirit and have had most interesting meetings.

When presenting a play of the Girl Scout Laws at the Banquet, they proved how completely they had already understood the rules of the Scout game. That is a real accomplishment for one month. One Saturday the troop hiked to the Girl Scout Cottage, where they made notebooks and decorated them with splatter prints. From all indications, it was an "inky" meeting. The notebooks were very well done and will be used for nature study. Patrols have been formed and corners chosen. Each atrol is working hard to make theirs the nicest. There is a window for each. The girls are having much difficulty trying to decide how to drape their curtains most attractively and to keep their plants watered during the week.

Also, there are rumors of a big Hallowe'en party.

AUXILIARY ST. LUKE'S CHURCH TO MEET—

The Woman's Auxiliary to St. Luke's church will meet at the church Friday afternoon at 2:30 in the Guild rooms. Each member is requested to bring a glass of jelly for the Cathedral shelter. And members are also reminded of the corporate communion at 9:30 at the church on Wednesday morning.

It's Good Taste To Serve Cheeses At Your Hallowe'en Dinner

Jack O'Lantern Carved From Edam Attractive on Dessert Tray

By NEA Service

A tray of dessert cheeses is the perfect ending for your Hallowe'en buffet supper. Nearly everyone likes two or three kinds of cheese, and if you serve several varieties you're sure to have something that will appeal to each guest.

America is becoming more and more conscious of the fact that cheese is an excellent dessert after a rather heavy and filling meal. The Continentals long ago discovered the secret and almost all European homes serve cheese followed by fruit for dessert.

Decorate a tray with autumn leaves and right in the center place a round, red Edam which has been cut to look like a Jack-o'-lantern. Make the eyes, nose and mouth with the point of a sharp knife and scoop out the center with a spoon. Arrange oyster crackers around the Edam and put the pieces of cheese which came out of it on them.

* * *

You might have a couple of nicely polished apples in the background. They are symbolic of autumn and of Hallowe'en.

Group several kinds of cheese, such as Liederkranz, Camembert, Roquefort, Swiss and American around the Jack-o'-Lantern. Intersperse the cheeses with rye bread, all kinds of crackers and, if the tray is large enough, with grapes or other fresh fruits.

The Liederkranz has a tawny color which will blend in with your Hallowe'en decorations. The Roquefort offers a pleasing contrasting tone.

Place the tray on one end of the buffet table, somewhere near the pot of coffee and the jug of cider, and let each guest help himself.

"Advanced Officers" Night October 30th

The advanced officers of Dorothy Chapter O. E. S. are very busy making plans for their "Advanced Officers Night" which is to take place on Monday evening, October 30, at the Dixon Masonic Temple. Invitations have been mailed to all of the Chapters in the surrounding cities, and arrangements are being The entire program for the evening will be in charge of the four highest advancing officers of Dorothy Chapter, and they have planned a very unique and most appropriate entertainment.

The committee who will have charge of the dining room have spent a great deal of time and effort in planning one of the most attractive dinners that has been served in the Dixon Masonic Temple for several years. The tables are to be arranged in an entirely different manner than heretefore, and the guests will be seated in a new way. The tables will be decorated with a Hallowe'en idea and the stage will be decorated with a scheme derived from one of McCutcheon's famous cartoons. The dinner itself will be one that should attract a very large number of guests for the principal items will be roast young turkey with dressing, cranberry sauce, appropriate salad, and all of the many tempting accessories which are served with this kind of a meal at this time of year. Tickets for this dinner, which should propeprly be termed a banquet, are only 40c. The dinner will be served at 6:30 P. M. There will be some exceptionally fine music during the dinner, and special places and favors have been arranged for the guest of honor and the visitors from the surrounding Chapters. The favors for the other tables have already been made and are very attractive, indeed.

Following the dinner, the guests will adjourn to the beautiful Chapter room where the meeting will be conducted by the advanced officers of Dorothy Chapter, assisted by the associate matrons and patrons of the Chapters of the surrounding cities. There will be an initiation of candidates and several very interesting entertainment features have been provided.

Reservations for the dinner should be made by Friday, October 27th. Telephone to either Mrs. Mazie Hoberg, Z935, or Mrs. Lela Bush, Y893.

Such a delightful dinner and entertaining program should tax the capacity of the dining room and also the beautiful Chapter room.

Miss Murdock to Wed Gordon Sprague

Oregon — Mrs. Robert Murdock was hostess to twenty four guests at her home Saturday at bridge and announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of the Murdock's daughter Miss Rebecca to Gordon Sprague, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sprague of Dening Place, Chicago.

The decorations and color scheme were lavender and yellow.

The announcement was made in a novel manner. A woolly stuffed cat in a silk bag was placed in the center of the table and concealed by autumn leaves. Ribbons led from the place cards to the bag and as the guests pulled the ribbons a small cardboard kitten was drawn from the bag on which was inscribed, "The cat is out of the bag—Gordon-Rebecca—December 16."

The bride-to-be is a graduate of the Oregon High School, the Frances Shimer College of Mt. Carroll and the Northwestern University, where she received a Bachelor of Science degree. The past few months she has been employed by the Department of Public Welfare in Chicago.

The groom-elect is a graduate of Northwestern University and is associated with the Jelke Company in Chicago.

Michigan Visitors Honored at Tea

Mrs. J. E. Wirth and Mrs. W. R. Hardy were hostesses at a charming bridge tea Saturday at the home of Mrs. Hardy. There were guests for three tables ,the tea honoring Mrs. F. D. Schrader, and her daughter, Miss Evelyn of Plymouth, Michigan who are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Prescott.

Hallowe'en decorations were attractive , with chrysanthemums adding autumn charm.

Mrs. Schrader was awarded the favor for high honors and she also received the 80-honor prize. The consolation favor was awarded Mrs. Kate Bryan. Guest favors were presented Mrs. Schrader and Miss Schrader. Mrs. Kate Bryan poured at the daintily appointed tea.

STEEL MUST COME DOWN.

Outstanding among the industries that were out of line and need to be readjusted before the flow of goods between different classes is what it ought to be, were steel, railway, and building industries.

President Roosevelt has taken the initiative in bringing steel down. While his dictatorship powers may give him legal right to fix prices, he has undertaken to make steel listen to reason.

The President has at his disposal a large sum of money that may be made available to railways to purchase rails. Railways need the rails and the steel industry needs the business. The President told the steel corporation heads that if they would come down off their high horse and make some real prices they could have some real business and make some real money.

The steel magnates departed with the comment that they would see what could be done about it. Chances are favorable for them getting the business. It is quite probable that a large part of the high cost of steel is caused by high freight rates, and that as long as rail rates are out of line, steel will be out of line.

The same thing is true in the building industry A large part of the high cost of building was in freight rates. When rail rates are put back in line, building ought to be back where money put into it will not vanish as it did during the last building boom.

While industrial production was approximately 90 percent of normal (1923 to 1925 being accepted by the government statisticians as normal), in August of this year, which is the height of the building season, the building industry was about 25 percent of normal.

The Ickes public works program ultimately will help the building industry, but the growth will be of the mushroom kind, puffed up by government expenditure and not by private investment based upon confidence.

RUSSIA IS PAYING.

Persons who argue for recognition of soviet Russia by the United States government because Russia is paying as she argued for recognition before the world knew whether the new government would pay its obligations or would regard them in the same light as it regarded property of American citizens that it confiscated.

Soviet dictators may be cracked on some subjects, but they are smart enough to know that they have to maintain a line of credit or go out of business. Refusal of recognition by the United States was based upon confiscation of property of foreigners without compensation therefore. The government's credit was bad. It had to do something to get credit. It needed and continues to need goods from the rest of the world.

Merchants know exactly how a deadbeat operates, especially where there are no credit organizations. When a new retail grocer opens a store he does a whale of a business for a while. He gets all the persons who can't get credit elsewhere. They pay for a while, and then they "came and left the pocketbook on the piano." Finally the book account is uncollectible and the new store down the street is doing a whale of a business.

Russia is like the common United States deadbeat. It treats lightly its prior obligations, but on the theory that it is paying cash, because the world is suspicious of it, credit is expected.

Russia will pay cash while that is the best cash policy. Russian government in its present form and in its other self, the Third Internationale, is dishonest at heart in its relations with other governments. The Lenin declaration was that every thing is moral that helps the Russian government.

GLARING LIGHTS.

In a Kentucky cemetery there is a grave stone erected for P. H. Nolan, assistant state game warden. After reciting the facts of his career it is stated on the marble "The accident was caused by the glaring lights of a passing automobile.' '

The time is coming soon, says the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriter, when glaring light will be outlawed. Many municipalities, and some states, are prescribing rules for the regulation of the lights.

In a recent survey conducted by an insurance company, it is set forth that from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. in 1932, there were 409,100 accidents in which 13,500 persons were killed, or 32 for every 1000 accidents. From 6 p. m. to 6 a. m. there were 336,200 accidents, but 15,500 deaths, or 46 per 1000. In other words, the death rate per accident was 43.7 percent worse during darkness than in daylight. The figures would have been still more unfavorable if they had started at 5 p. m. instead of 6 p. m., particularly in winter.

Automobile accidents during dusk and darkness are more likely to result in serious injuries and death because vision is reduced by inadequate illumination and because headlight glare from approaching cars momentarily blinds drivers.

You can do lots of things in pictures with a lion, unless he does it first.—Jack Pearl, comedian.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Said Duncy, "Tell you what let's do. As long as this wigwam is so new, I would like to sleep in it tonight. I think it would be fun.

"We made it nice and big, you see, and it looks comfy as can be. I am sure the Indians won't mind, and there's room for everyone."

"You thing of naught but sleeping, lad, but even so I will be glad to join you in a good night's rest," said Scouty, with a grin.

An Indian shouted, "Go ahead. It is getting dark, so go to bed. Just crawl into some blankets." And the Tinymites crawled in.

In just a moment Goldy cried, "Oh, listen to the song outside. The Indians are real thoughtful. They are singing us to sleep."

The Tinies listened for a while. Then, on each face there spread a smile. It wasn't very long until you couldn't hear a peep.

At break of dawn there came a shout, "Hey, Tinymites, come on, hop out. A dandy breakfast is ready. Get it while it's nice and hot."

"You bet we will," cried Dotty. "Gee, some hot food sounds real good to me." They soon were served with hot porridge and each Tiny ate a lot.

Toward noon the fisherman said, "Say, I think I'd best be on my way. You Tinymites can stay here, if you wish, and play a while.

"Right near my cabin there is a spot where I can fish and catch a lot." "Oh, gee! Can we go with you?" questioned Dotty, with a smile.

"Why, sure you can," the old man cried. "Gee here's my chance to have a ride. You Tinymites can pull me on the travois, if you will."

And so they all said goodby to the Indian tribe. Then off they flew. "Hang on real tight," yelled Coppy, "or you will likely take a spill."

(Duncy's catch makes the Tinymites laugh in the next story.)

Everyday Religion

THE TIDE HAS TURNED

By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton

"We are tired of destruction," a young woman writes; "we want to build up. We are sick of being told that life is a futility and a farce. If there is no reason in life there may be no reason for it; and that is nonsense— the drivel of a sick mind."

"Such talk is unwholesome," she goes on; "just junk. Dreiser, Mencken, Hemingway, Russell, and Lewis are kill-joys. They are sour souls in whom the milk of life has curdled. When they sing their sad ditty we ask, 'Well, is that all? What comes next? Where do we go from here?' "

"Not one of my friends is an atheist," she adds. "They all believe in God, but the problem is the approach to God. Frankly, we don't find the technique in the existing church, but we want it. If only some one would show us the way, we'd run after him and not stop."

There it is plain enough, as a thoughtful girl puts it. If one is to fall in love, found a home, raise a family, or do anything worthwhile, one must have something positive to build on. Negation is a dead-end; it gets nowhere. It stagnates the healthy energy of life.

The tide has turned, as it was sure to do after such a spiritual slump as we have suffered in the last decade. The thrust of life will not be thwarted for long. Old dogmas and denials are alike impotent and futile. But youth will come back, in one way or another to a kind of faith of its own, and it will live happily with it ever after.

After all, each generation has to find its own faith, learn its own truth, and do its own work. One generation learns very little from another. It is time to let youth alone and look after our own spiritual affairs, we who are older and as muddled as we can be. Has the storm blown out our fire of faith or fanned it into a flame?

Alas, the tragic collapses of faith are not in youth, but in maturity, and some of us know the reason why. More dangerous than the agitations of youth is "the contagion of the world's slow stain"; and we may well pray for a return of the tide of new life and hope.

Beware the Cough or Cold that Hangs On

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, and attacks the seat of the trouble.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion. (adv.)

THE CARE OF A COLD

One wise old English practitioner recommended two dozen soft handkerchiefs as the best remedy for a cold. This remedy has much to recommend it.

In addition, however—and this is perhaps an even more important remedy for the cold— the sufferer should go to bed and stay there from 24 to 48 hours.

Of all the prescriptions that are given for the treatment of the cold, probably none is better and more significant than rest in bed.

Bed rest will help to shorten the duration of the cold, will lessen the severity of its symptoms and will be a protection against serious complications.

Certain local applications can be of help and comfort to the cold sufferer in clearing the nose and throat. When these are stuffed up with mucous secretions they can be cleared by the use of a spray or by snuffing water from the palm of the hand. An ordinary saline solution made by the addition of half a teaspoonful of salt to a glass of wates is best for such use.

An important precaution in spraying the nose or in snuffing water is not to swallow during the process. This precaution is advised in order to guard against the extension of the infection into the inner ear tubes, the throat end of which opens in the act of swallowing.

To guard against swallowing one should spray the nose and snuff up water with the mouth open.

When the throat is irritated and the sufferer has a tendency to cough, some relief may be gained from steam inhalations. The important thing in steam inhalations is steam and not the medicant, though a sweet-smelling tincture of benzoin or pine oil has a desirable psychologic effect on the sufferer.

Warm baths are also of value in the care of a cold. The prolonged warm bath stimulates circulation and promotes mucous excretion. When the patient suffers a fever, a tepid sponge bath in bed will bring much relief and comfort.

Herman Paul Sachse, who devoted his life to the design and production of scientific instruments, died this summer in Chicago.

His wife died in 1930, and, following her death, he found solace in his work. He worked harder than even in his latter days and developed many designs and plans for scientific exhibits in the Hall of Science for A Century of Progress.

Mr. Sachse didn't attend the Fair. Before he died at the Passavant Memorial Hospital, he was permitted to see only the buildings of the exposition from the windows of his hospital room.

There are countless individuals in the world who contribute far more to mankind than they receive in return. Their kind is among the forgotten.

Remember in 1916?—"Have you heard the new Dago song? Dago wild, simply wild, over me."

"It is the duty of banks to obey the law, but I don't know yet what that means," says J. P. Morgan. Why, Mr. Morgan! And after your show with Mr. Pecora last summer!

The New England Traffic Club held its annual banquet the other night. It was "speechless," entertainment taking the place of the conventional spellbinding. And over 500 were present, although they didn't state how many usually attended. I suppose it's too much to hope this will be contagious.

OFFICE HOLDERS' ARMY SPRINGS UP IN WAKE OF NRA

Chicago Gets A Generous Share Of Newly Approved Offices

Chicago Tribune — Chicago has been given a generous share of the new regimental order of public officeholders who have sprung up all over the country under the new deal, a survey disclosed yesterday.

A corps of federal pro-consuls with impressive titles and an army of sub and sub-sub aides have sprung up in the campaign by the national administration to restore the nation to economic normalcy by pouring billions of dollars into public works programs and other government controlled ventures and imposing supervision in every likely field.

In the Chicago area these generals who are serving under the regulatory banners of the NRA, the AAA, the RFC, the FHLB, the CCC, the HOLC, and the TVA and others including the recently added FDIC with their staffs, number almost 500. The salaries of these boards, mediators, managers, coordinators, administrators and deputies in Chicago alone total more than $1,000,000 annually.

Exclusive of Expenses

The salaries are exclusive of numerous incidental expenses. Nor do they take into account the costs of outfitting and maintaining the numerous office headquarters that had to be made available. For example, the Chicago headquarters of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration recently took over practically the entire seventh floor of the Congress Bank building, 506 S. Wabash avenue.

As an indication of the great expense attached to these multiple units of pro-consuls throughout the country, it was pointed out that the yearly salaries of the various Chicago officials is almost one-fourth the annual cost of maintaining the entire National Recovery Administration. It was recently announced that the cost of operating the NRA nationally, for the first year would be $4,250,000 or at the rate of $11,600 a day.

Some of the new deal officials here were averse to telling just what their duties were, how many employes they had, or what their salaries were. C. B. Spofford, who is in charge of the Chicago headquarters of the AAA, would not even disclose his title or the nature of his activities. W. C. McQueen, milk marketing specialist under the AAA, took a similar attitude stating, "Watshington told us to be careful about giving out informaion."

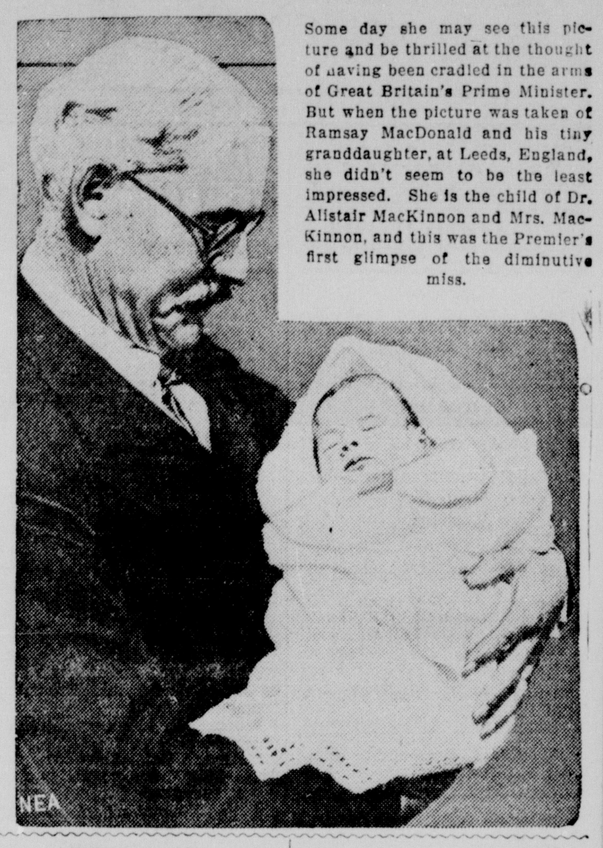

Others Refuse Information

George Fonger, in charge of the meat processing code under the AAA, said that his duties and personnel and salary were "my own personal business." Ira A. Moore, Chicago area manager of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, said that his salary and the salaries of his 170 employes "should be kept out of the newspapers, particularly The Tribune." On Mr. Moore's staff are four attorneys drawing annual salaries of $6,000 to $8,000 each.

Officials of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Evanston, which was established by a federal subscription of $15,000,000 would not divulge the salaries of the operating staff headed by A. R. Gardiner, executive vice president. Mr. Gardiner took the position that the institution was a semi-private enterprise because the expenses of operating it were paid out of the profits on interest earnings on all loans.

Most of the other emergency administration officials, however, gave all facts concerning their public positions without hesitation. In cases where the information was refused the data were forthcoming in Washington. In one case of the Federal Deposit Guarantee Insurance Corporation, even at the capitol information relating to W. I. Schuma, the Chicago representative, and his staff, was flatly denied.

PRESIDENT TO SEEK CONTROL OF WORLD GOLD

Will Put The Government Into Business Of Buying, Selling

Washingon, Oct. 23—(AP)—Firm control of the dollar's gold value today was added by President Roosevelt to the government's multiple efforts to lift commodity prices.

The means of control was establishment of a government market for newly mined gold in the United States and the Presideht's decision to buy or sell gold—"whenever necessary"—in the world markets.

Roosevelt announced the step as a definite policy, "to establish and maintain continuous control" looking toward a managed currency, in a talk to the country last night. He pledged specifically to boost price levels and eventually revalue the dollar.

"Government credit will be maintained," the President said, "and a sound currency will accompany a rise in the American commodity price level."

Reviewing his administration's recovery campaign, Roosevelt assured the people "we are on our way and we are headed in the right direction."

Price Level First

"When we have restored the price level," said the President, "we shall seek to establish and maintain a dollar which will not change its purchasing and debt paying power during the succeeding generation."

For the present, he said, it was important to tighten control over the dollar. Roosevelt added:

"As a further effective means to this end, I am going to establish a government market for gold in the United States. Therefore, under the clearly defined authority of existing law, I am authorizing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to buy gold newly mined in the United States at prices to be determined from time to time after consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury and the President. Whenever necessary to the end in view, we shall also buy or sell gold in the world market."

Stressed NRA

Along with this new monetary action, Roosevelt discussed generally the aims and achievements of the recovery drive, stressing the Farm and NRA Administrations as mounting columns in the new "edifice of recovery—the temple which, when completed, will no longer be a temple of money changers or beggars but rather a temple dedicated to and maintained for a greater social justice, a welfare for America—the habitation of a sound economic life."

He urged the faster spending of public works money and emphasized "two simple facts" about banking—the billion dollar program for freeing deposits frozen in banks closed since January and the deposit guarantee becoming effective next January.

Looking up from the desk in the White House study where he spoke the President explained his new dollar control:

"My aim in taking this step is to establish and maintain continuous control. This is a policy and not an expedient.

"It is not to be used merely to offset a temporary fall in prices. We are thus continuing to move towards a managed currency.

"Because of conditions in this country and because of events beyond our control in other parts of the world, it becomes increasingly important to develop and apply the further measures which may be necessary from time to time to control the gold value of our own dollar at home.

"Our dollar is now altogether too greatly influenced by the accidents of international trade, by the internal policies of other nations and by political disturbance in other continents. Therefore, the United States must take firmly in its own hands the control of the gold value of our dollar. This is necessary in order to prevent dollar disturbances from swinging us away from our ultimate goal, namely, the continued recovery of our commodity prices."

Promises Action

Dealing with the agriculture problem, Roosevelt said he was not satisfied with the improvement in farm prices and would insist upon a further increase.

"If we cannot do this one way," he said, "we will do it another. But do it we will."

"I do not hesitate to say in the simplest, clearest language of which I am capable," he said, "that although the prices of many products of the farm have gone up and although many farm families are better off than they were last year, I am not satisfied either with the amount or the extent of the rise, and that it is definitely a part of our policy to increase the rise and to extend it to those products which have as yet felt no benefit."

Roosevelt estimated that 4,000,000 people have been given employment since March—"or, saying it another way, 40 per cent of those seeking work have found it."

"That does not mean," he said, "that I am satisfied. We have a long way to go but we are on the way."

Turning to the NRA, the President said:

"In the vast majority of cases, in the vast majority of localities—the NRA has been given support in unstinted measure. We know that there are chiselers. At the bottom of every case of criticism and obstruction we have found some selfish interest, some private axe to grind."

Among the group of family guests who sat listening to the President talk last night was Professor Raymond Moley, former Assistant Secretary of State and intimate adviser.

The Chief Executive spoke over the National and Columbia Broadcasting Systems.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARCUS W. ZIGLER

(Contributed)

Roxana McKee Zigler, daughter of Samuel and Lettie McKee, was born in Butler county, Penrsylvania, August 22, 1843, she being the second in a family of five girls. Her sisters are Helen, Caroline, Adella and Olive.

In very early childhood, the family home was moved to Mercer county, where she received her common school education. Following this she attended the State Normal school at Edinboro, preparing herself for the profession of teaching which she followed for a period of eight years.

In the year 1869, she was married to Rev. Beriah C. Montgomery, a Presbyterian minister with whom she lived happily for eight years when he was taken in death. To them had been born two sons, Herbert, who died in infancy and Elton M., who remains to mourn the passing of his mother.

Three years after the death of her first husband, she was united in marriage to Marcus W. Zigler, who had been a friend and schoolmate of childhood, and who himself having become a widower, upon visiting his old Pennsylvania home, renewed the old friendship which culminated in this marriage, which occurred Sept. 2, 1880. Mr. Zigler brought his new bride to his old home in Jordan township on his farm located a mile south of Wilson Mill, along Elkhorn Creek.

Here she assumed the heavy responsibility of aiding in the raising of Mr. Zigler's motherless family of children, these being six in number, namely, Edgar, Bruce, Mary, Emily, John and Marcus. She devoted herself to these children as to her own, doing her utmost to serve them as a friend and mother.

In her marriage to Mr. Zigler, two more children were born, one son and one daughter, namely, Marietta L. Scholl of Woosung, and Ralph N. of Rock Falls.

In 1900, Mr. and Mrs. Zigler moved from their Elkhorn Creek farm to Fairview farm, located one mile south of East Jordan church where they lived for twelve years, at which time in 1912, they decided to move to Sterling and spend the remainder of their life retired from active work. During their retirement from active employment they spent a lengthy period in the west visiting many points, 'hough chiefly in Long Beach, California. They also made several trips back to Pennsylvania to visit their childhood homes.

Mr. Zigler died August 17, 1921, having attained an age of 88 years, and Mr. Zigler continued to live in the Sterling home until 1926 when she was persuaded to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Scholl, where she spent the rest of her days.

As a girl of 15 she had united with the Presbyterian church, but on coming to this country, united with the East Jordan church where her membership was continued for a period of 32 years or until she moved to Sterling whereupon she became a member of the First Presbyterian church until a United Brethren church was formed there when she changed her membership back to that connection, then upon returning to the country again her membership at East Jordan was resumed. She was always an active worker in both church and Sunday school. In addition she delighted in active interest in the W. C. T. U. and the King's Daughters.

On August 22 last, less than two months ago, she celebrated her 90th birthday at which time she was visited by a large number of her friends and relatives, it proving a most enjoyable day for all.

She passed away Sunday morning, October 15th, at one o'clock, after an illness of five weeks, and just two months to the day following the death of her dear friend, Mrs. J. C. Scholl, whose passing brought to her much grief.

Mrs. Zigler leaves to mourn her one daughter, Mrs. Marietta Scholl of Woosung, two sons, Elton Montgomery and Ralph Zigler, of Rock Falls, three step children, Mrs. Mary Livingston, John A. and Marcus J., all of Sterling, sixteen grandchildren and one great grandchild, seven step grandchildren and one sister, Mrs. Olive Perry of Grove City, Pennsylvania.

She lived a faithful consistent christian life having a sincere affection for her Bible, her church and her Lord. Her hosts of friends have for her life only words of great commendation and praise.—Contributed.

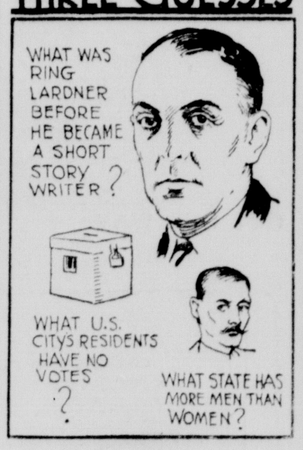

CECIL N. HEATHERINGTON

(Contributed)

Cecil Nelson Heatherington, second son of Clyde and Pearl Heatherington was born in Harmon, February 5, 1907 and passed away at his home, Oct. 17, 1933 at the age of 26 years, eight months and 12 days. At the age of 13, he with his parents moved near Grand Detour. He spent the greater part of his life in and near Dixon. On July 16, 1927, he was united in marriage to Miss Caroline E. Winebrenne, at Sycamore, Ill. To this union was born one daughter, Barbara Jean. He leaves to mourn his early departure, his devoted wife and eight months old daughter, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Heatherington of near Mt. Morris, Ill., and four brothers and six sisters, Elwood of Dixon, Mrs. Charles Merrill and Mildred Heatherington of Oregon, Mrs. Gordon Olson of Morris, Ill., Harold of the state of Washington, Earl, Blanche, Robert, Betty and Phyllis at home, also two nieces and four nephews and a host of friends. He was preceded in death by one sister, Cletta Arlene and one brother Donald. On Easter Sunday, April 16, 1933, he confessed Christ as his personal Saviour and united with the Christian church of Dixon. For the past several years he has been employed by Carl Stephan of Ashton. He was a kind, loving husband and father, very much devoted to his family.

WHILE effort by the ball carrier to advance the ball at all costs is commendable, crawling is one means which clean players should avoid.

Crawling is technically defined as an attempt to advance after a player is downed, having touched the ground with some part of his body other than his hands or feet. It is not only illegal but it is dangerous. Once a downed player attempts to crawl, he invites a pile-up.

Crawling makes the referee's task difficult. In many cases, instead of penalizing the crawler, he puts the penalty on the players, causing the pile-up, because he is unable to see that the infringement of rules was caused by a crawler.

Sketch shows player crawling, with one knee on the ground, a position which makes him legally downed. 23

BIG TEN TEAMS TO STAY IN OWN YARDS THIS WEEK

Four Conference Engagements Scheduled Saturday

Chicago, Oct. 23 —(AP)— The Big Ten football conference stays in its own back yard this week end to continue its annual business of deciding the championship.

Four games, all conference tilts, are booked for Saturday. Illinois, undefeated in the title race, and Indiana, halted by one tie and a loss, are idle.

The focus of attention centers on Iowa and Minnesota at Minneapolis. Little did fans and football experts think that Iowa once considered the doormat of the Big Ten, would be playing such an important conference game. Minnesota, a team that blasted championship hopes by tieing two teams will be up against high powered offense when it tackles the Hawkeyes. Iowa has scored 71 points against three opponents so far and is leading the conference race with two victories and no defeats.

The next important game probably is the Michigan-Chicago conflict at Stagg Field, at Chicago. Michigan is apparently headed for another title, but besides Chicago, must dispose of Illinois, Iowa Minnesota and Northwestern.

Purdue and Wisconsin hook up in a game at Madison that should indicate Purdue's future this season. Northwestern will travel to Columbus to engage Ohio State which promises to be tough after its 13 to 0 spanking at Ann Arbor. The Wildcats, on the other hand, proved they had an offense last week against Indiana.

Wasp Given Credit for Making Paper From Wood

It is only within the last seventy-five years or so that paper has been made from wood fibers to any great extent. Before that time it was made of linen and cotton rags, says a representative of the American Tree association. During those times, when rags were the only raw material for paper, periods of great scarcity occurred, for the mills were often unable to get them. Appeals were made to the public to save rags and linen for paper making. During the Revolution American officers could not always obtain the small amount of paper needed for military orders. Newspaper editors were often forced to print on even the margins of their papers, so scarce was this commodity that we have in abundance.

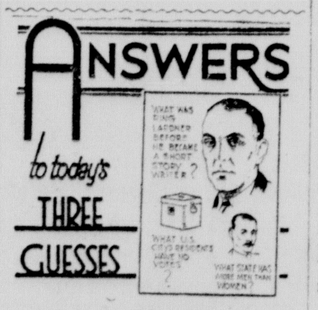

In the Eighteenth century a German who had studied the methods of the paper wasp was struck with the possibility of making paper from wood. But it was not until about 1845 that wood began to replace flax and linen and cotton rags for paper making. So it is probably to the wasp that we must give credit for first suggesting the possibility of using trees as raw material for paper making.

The discovery that paper could be made directly from such an abundant raw material as wood revolutionized the paper industry and is largely responsible for the great spread of reading throughout the world. Nine-tenths of our paper is manufactured from wood. Only the more expensive, specialized papers are manufactured from rags.

Hoot Owl a Noble Bird and Is Farmers' Helper

In the dusk of evening up and down the wooded valleys of our midwest streams and creeks can be heard the eerie, weird call of the long-eared or hoot owl, observes a writer in Our Dumb Animals. He is liable to be heard any time of year but oftenest in summer or autumn. He is a noble bird and man's friend. He usually has his nest in the forks and hollows of large trees and because of his nocturnal habits and unobtrusive ways he should survive many more decades. His prey consists largely of field mice and chipmunks which are very destructive to fresh planted corn, yet where the owl is these pests are scarce. He will occasionally get young groundhogs and this trait should entitle him to protection. He is also a good weather prophet. If several of his kind take turns at calling and appear to be answering each other from different points up and down the creek during the evening and their calls are a little louder than common, a rain is not far off.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Probation After Death" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 22.

The Golden Text was, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them" (Rev. 14:13).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away" (Rev. 21:3, 4).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Life is the origin and ultimate of man, never attainable through death, but gained by walking in the pathway of Truth both before and after that which is called death" (p. 487).

"Croatans" Are Indians

The mystery of the "Croatans," a group of about 8,000 persons of mixed white and Indian blood living in South Carolina, has been settled, tentatively, by an ethnologist of the Smithsonian institution, who says they are most probably descendants of Siouxan Indian stock. The "Croatans" were so named because of a popular belief that they were descendants of Sir Walter Raleigh's lost colony at Roanoke island.—Literary Digest.

More Women Than Men

After a long period in which the male population exceeded the female by about 1,100 per 1,000, Italy still has more women than men. In the census of 1871 the proportions were 1,100 men to 1,000 women. The latest census returns show only 957 men to 1,000 women.

BALL'S DREAM OF WINNER IS ENDED BY DEATH

President of St. Louis Browns Died Sunday From Septicemia

St. Louis, Oct. 23—(AP)—Death has ended Philip de Catesby Ball's 18-year dream of producing an American League pennant winner.

The valiant veteran of baseball died yesterday at St. John's hospital here of septicemia at the age of 62.

Since 1916, when he became owner of the St. Louis Browns, Ball had cherished the thought of winning a pennant with his club. The nearest he approached the pinnacle was in 1922 when the Browns finished in second place, tailing th New York Yankees by one game.

With the passing of the president of the St. Louis Americans, speculation began on the fate of the club. Today L. C. McEvoy, vice president and general manager, took up the reins temporarily and found before him plans for revamping the team along lines suggested by Rogers Hornsby, manager.

Funeral services for Ball will be conducted Tuesday afternoon from the Ball home here, with burial in Bellefontaine cemetery.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOAN WARING, pretty Memphis girl, and BOB WESTON, son of a New York millionaire, meet in Memphis and fall in love.

The romance progresses happily until Joan and Bob are invited to a house party. Through the scheming of BARBARA COURTNEY, who is trying to win Bob, Joan and Bob become estranged.

Meanwhile PAT WARING, Joan's younger sister, is in an automobile accident and JERRY FORRESTER, her escort, is killed. The fact that they had just come from a road house and that Jerry had been drinking appears in the newspapers. Bob's father reads about the accident and asks Bob to give up Joan.

Pat runs away to New York, leaving a note explaining that she feels she has brought only unhappiness to the family. Joan follows and begins a search for her sister and also for a job which will enable her to remain in New York. Aided by KATE JONES, a model, Joan is given a try-out by BARNEY BLAKE, night club owner. Joan waits breathlessly to learn whether or not she has won a job.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXII

JOAN looked at the night club manager without replying. He went on, whimsically but with a current of seriousness behind the words. "Don't mind me, Miss Waring. I'm always jumping fences instead of stopping to open gates. It's just my way of getting past a lot of preliminaries which are really unimportant. We move fast in this business. What I mean is that it isn't going to be difficult for us to understand each other," he concluded.

He smiled then and Joan smiled back. People instinctively liked Barney Blake. His infectious smile and boyishness won them completely.

He was shifting papers in a desk drawer, frowning a little. "Here it is. Just luck that I saved it." He smoothed out a newspaper clipping and handed it to Joan. Her eyes were caught by bold, black headlines and the picture of a masked woman.

"When I was in Monte Carlo several years ago," he went on, "I was in one of the elaborate night clubs which had a large and wealthy patronage. The place was packed every night principally because of a singer—an attractive woman who was always masked. People are really like children. You must humor them in a lot of foolish notions!

"Incidentally, the singer disappeared one night. At the same time an American woman missed a costly diamond necklace. Guests remembered afterward that the singer had stopped near the Americans to untangle her scarf which had caught on a chair. The police worked on the case, but the woman was never found. She simply removed her mask and escape was simple."

Joan was becoming more bewildered. "It sounds like the fiction I was always encouraged to leave on the bookshelves," she said. "Are you planning to involve me in a jewel robbery?"

"Hardly! I've built my business on unexpected things. I am preparing to offer you a chance now because I believe we can put over an idea I've had in mind for four years. I'm taking you on as one of my singers and you will sing in a mask. Other cabarets have tried the same thing, but I mean to do it differently."

• • •

WHEN Joan reached the hotel she found a telegram waiting for her. It read, "Received long letter from Pat. She has job and is living with another girl. Gave no address but promised one soon. Am writing tonight. Mother."

Joan sat down and cried over the telegram, the burden of anxiety slipping from her with her tears. Now she could bear looking out of the window at the millions of lights. Pat was safe. Pat had found work. Clever, efficient, level-headed little Pat. Oh, if she could only see her tonight!

It was a long while before Joan could think of her own new job. She had been vaguely troubled at the idea of singing in a night club but had pushed aside her scruples. The melodramatic plan to have her wear a mask changed all that. She could sing at the "Jigsaw" and no one would be wiser. Masking seemed silly but it would make the job much easier.

Blake had terminated the interview a little abruptly. "There'll be $50 a week for you in it. Perhaps more later on if the act goes over."

Joan smiled. Fifty dollars a week was a fortune! She went to the window and looked out at the brilliant play of lights against the velvet background of the sky; the shining electrical display dwarfing the stars. They seemed like shining pin points in a black canopy. That was illusion. Small things appearing big and vast and infinite things seeming little and unreal.

"It seemed cheap to sing in a night club," she was thinking, "but when I took the job I was thinking of finding Pat. Now it's only fair to go through with it. Besides I won't leave Pat in New York. When I go home I want to take her with me."

• • •

JOAN went to the small desk in the corner of the room and wrote; "Darling Mother, you will never know how happy your telegram made me. I guess you do know, because all the anxiety and fear must have fallen from you when Pat's letter came. It was just like that with me. I was so happy I cried. I have been nearly frantic with fear for three weeks but I didn't want you to know that. I will write Pat tonight, care of General Delivery, and beg her to tell me where she is staying.

"I am going to stay in New York as long as Pat does. I have a job singing at a night club. Don't be shocked about it. It really is a nice place and the manager isn't at all what you'd expect. He looks just like any young business man and he is as nice as can be. They say he's just a smart Yankee who's made a lot of money because he manages to out-guess the crowd that comes to his club—always giving them some new or different sort of entertainment. Barney Blake is his name. One of the girls told me he went to college but didn't want to practice law and somehow he turned out to be a night club manager.

"In my act I am to wear a mask and I'm never to take it off until I return home at night. Of course in the day time I'm just Joan Waring but at night I'll be singing old songs like "Love Brings a Gift of Roses," wearing a lovely old-fashioned frock. And there's a gypsy song with a gorgeous gypsy costume. I think I like that best. Really the job is going to be fun—"

Bill grinned when his mother finished the letter. "Sounds like our little Joan sort of likes that night club fellow. What do you say, Mother?"

His mother said, "Nonsense, Bill! Don't be foolish."

• • •

THE first morning when Pat was introduced to her work as a model in the large wholesale house a girl named Jane Johnson prophesied, "You'll like wearing good clothes—and you'll get used to them."

One month later Pat knew what Jane meant. When she slipped carelessly into an exquisite evening gown of white lace with pink rosebuds on the bodice she enjoyed the touch of the fragile fabric, the artful lines, the flattering way in which the dress clung to her figure. Pat turned the price tag thoughtfully in her hand. Yes, it was easy to learn to like beautiful clothes.

Jane, who had worked her way up to a supervisory position, put her head in the door. "There's a gang of buyers waiting to see those evening gowns. More speed, girls!"

Laureen was modeling a green satin Vionnet. Jessie's white chiffon was a copy of a Chanel. Ruth wore black velvet and Mabel, the other girl, a coral crepe. Pat, already dressed, stood watching the others.

"All right, Jessie," Jane said from the door.

Mabel, looking like a glowing flame in the coral dress, was next. It was Mabel who whispered to Pat when she returned, "The boss is all a-twitter! Some of his best buyers are in there—old Fosdick from Indianapolis, Larry Brentford from Milwaukee and a man from Dallas. The rest are small fry who don't matter so much."

Pat, her golden curls caught back, looked young and graceful with the roses of her corsage matching color in her soft, curved lips. Slowly she entered the big room, paraded before the men and women buyers. As she moved over the thick carpet, past the large, comfortable chairs, she became conscious of the admiring gaze of one man.

It made Pat nervous—the half smile on the lips of the stockily-built man. It was almost a deliberate stare. He was carefully dressed, his thinning hair brushed until every hair lay smoothly in place. He sat forward in his seat, one hand gripping his cane, devouring Pat with his eyes.

She did not know why she disliked him so much or why she found his appraisal so disconcerting. After all, she was there to be looked at. She sighed with relief, however, when she was back in the dressing room.

She had slipped into her street clothes and was tucking her curls under a white knitted hat when Jane came in.

"They want you in the manager's office," Jane said, adding kindly, "I'm sure it's nothing to worry about."

"What in the world can the manager want with me?" Pat asked.

Jane did not answer and Pat opened the door. Her heart was beating nervously. Then she stifled her fears. What could there be to worry about?

A cyclone is the devils electric broom,
Sweeping the earth, leaving destruction and gloom.
The swath is both long and wide,
It scrubs and rinses on every side.

It picks its location and settles there,
It grumbles and growels at all things fair.
After hours of complaining it starts to work,
Levels communities with a force and jerk.

It seldom sweeps cleanly, hits here and there,
Is at war with nature, causing despair.
Time only can erase the path it has made,
And grow flowers of good deeds in its stead.

MANY FAVORITES OVERTHROWN ON GRIDS SATURDAY

Downfall Of Irish And Pitt Panthers Feature Of Week End

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Oct. 23—(AP)—The nation's football legions face the fourth Saturday in October with many perennial favorites already overthrown, the list of unbeaten teams dwindling fast and further fireworks promised all along the line.

The downfall of Pitt's Panthers and Notre Dame and the tieing of Southern California last Saturday proved anew the shaky foundation on which football reputations rest.

The usual Monday morning recount, taken on the basis of last week's results, indicates that temporary leadership at least can be assigned to Michigan and Nebraska in the mid-west; Duke and Alabama in the south; Princeton, Fordham and perhaps Army in the east; Arkansas and Southern Methodist in the southwest.

The prospects for this week's slate, headed by such pairings as Southern California - California, Yale-Army, Penn-Navy, Harvard-Dartmouth, Fordham - Alabama, Notre Dame-Pitt and Iowa-Minnesota, follow:

East

Princeton and Fordham look most powerful right now but Yale, Army, Dartmouth, Holy Cross, Carnegiee Tech, Syracuse, Colgate and Duquesne still are unbeaten and untied. Duquesne has a "breather" against Westminster this week but all the others are in some danger. Yale and Army collide at New Haven, Fordham must tackle formidable Alabama and Dartmouth faces Harvard. Holy Cross, conqueror of Harvard, and Colgate, unimpressive against New York University, may find Brown and Lafayette, respectively, somewhat tough. Princeton and Syracuse confront intersectional foes. The rampant Tigers, whose 20-0 rout of Columbia marked their first major victory since 1928, meet Washington & Lee who upset Kentucky last week. Syracuse travels west to face Michigan State. Carnegie plays an old rival in Washington & Jefferson. Other leading pairings include Penn-Navy, Manhattan-Villanova, Bucknell-Temple, Columbia-Penn State, Rutgers-Lehigh and West Virginia-Davis Elkins.

Midwest

Michigan, on the basis of its great showing against Ohio State, looks like the class of the conference and should beat Chicago. Iowa's Hawkeyes, conquerors of Northwestern and Wisconsin, tackle Minnesota's Gophers who blasted Pitt's national championship aspirations last week. Purdue looks too good for Wisconsin and Ohio State will try to get going again against Northwestern. What looked like one of the season's classics a month ago Pitt vs. Notre Dame at South Bend, now is just a game between beaten elevens. Nebraska carries its Big Six title hopes against Okaloham with Missouri and Iowa State, Kansas and Kansas State clashing in other conference duels.

Pacific Coast

Southern California forgets its scoreless tie with Oregon State, breaking a string of 25 consecutive victories, to concentrate on the annual battle with California. Stanford invades the north to meet Washington. Oregon, the leader with two triumphs, will find U. C. L. A. tough. Oregon State and Washington State, which tied California, meet in a battle of "dope-upsetters." Idaho and Montana complete an all-conference program.

South

Georgia's tussle with New York University tops a program otherwise marked by three Southeastern, two Southern Conference games, and three contests pitting representatives of each against one another. Tulane and Auburn, Tennessee and Florida and Louisiana State-Vanderbilt are the Southeastern pairings, while Virginia Poly and South Carolina, and Virginia and Virginia Military play Southern Conference games. North Carolina and Georgia Tech, Kentucky and Duke, and Mississippi and Clemson are involved in inter-conference tests. Centenary, still unbeaten, confronts another Southwest foe in Texas Christian. Kentucky, Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi State, Vanderbilt and Louisiana State all are unbeaten in the Southeastern; Duke, Virginia Poly, South Carolina Virginia, Washington & Lee and North Carolina in the Southern.

Canzoneri Will Start Come Back Trial This Week

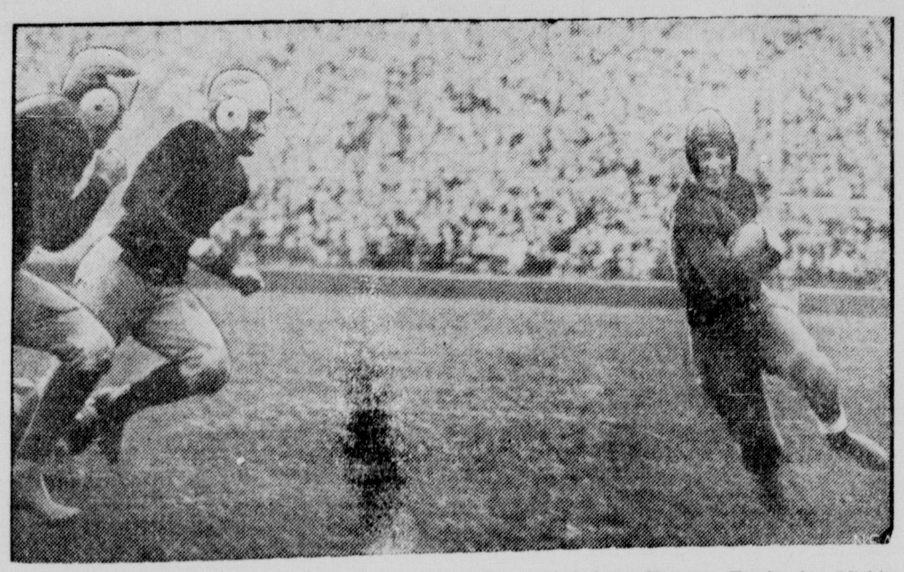

New York, Oct. 23—(AP)—Tony Canzoneri, the chunky miniature edition of Babe Ruth who came about as near as any fighter ever has to winning back a title after he lost it, starts another attempt to scale the championship heights this week.

Tony lost his lightweight crown to Barney Ross on a close decision at Chicago last summer and failed by a slim margin to regain it in New York three monthe later. Now he is slated to face Frankie Klick of San Francisco in a ten rounder at Ridgewood Grove, New York, Saturday night just to prove that he still is in there scrapping.

Freddie Miller, the National Boxing Association featherweight champion, also gets into action this week to lend a bit more interest to a long but rather dull program. Miller tackles Jackie Sharkey of Minneapolis in a ten round non-title affair at Milwaukee tonight.

— MICHIGAN vs. OHIO —

Everhardus—Too Hard For Ohio State

Continuing the brilliant runs he staged against Cornell a week before, Herman Everhardus, Michigan halfback, flashed his form in front of Ohio State's vaunted line and ran the Buckeyes to a 13-0 ruin at Ann Arbor, Mich. Everhardus, shown above starting off on one of his end runs, was ably aided by the passing of Mill Reenner, sophomore quarterback from Youngstown, Ohio.

NATION'S LEADING FOOTBALL SCORERS

(By The Associated Press.)

Winter of Davis Elkins College heads the national list of individual football scoring leaders, an Associated Press compilation showed today.

Playing with a team that has run up 284 points in six games, Winter has contributed 67. Ralph Graham of Kansas State, Big Six leader, stands second at 42.

The leader in each conference or group follows:

Player and College	Pos.	G	Td	Pat	Fldg	T
East—Winter, Davis Elkins	HB	6	11	1	0	67

CHICAGO BEARS SEEM HEADED TO ANOTHER CROWN

Victory Over Green Bay's Packers Enhances Their Chances

Chicago, Oct. 23 —(AP)—Having disposed of the Green Bay Packers with a 10 to 7 victory, the Chicago Bears today began looking toward another National Professional League football title. However, three obstacles stand in the way—New York Giants, Boston Redskins, and the Portsmouth Spartans. Beating any one of them will be no easy task.

Portsmouth has been beaten by Green Bay 17 to 0. The Bears trimmed Boston 7 to 0 in their first meeting, but the future does not look so easy. So far New York has only lost to Portsmouth and Boston.

Won In Last Period

The Bears retained their hold on first place by a fourth quarter victory over the Packers yesterday. Jack Manders booted a field goal to give the locals the edge after each had scored seven points. Blood, substitute quarterback for Green Bay, and Johnsos, Bear end, accounted for the touchdowns. Manders also kicked the extra point for the victors.

The New York Giants led by Harry Newman, the former Michigan star, scored in every period but the last to defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 21 to 7. Newman, Campbell and Richards made the touchdowns.

A drizzling rain at Cincinnati made the Reds-Pittsburgh game a punting duel that ended in a scoreless tie.

In yesterday's other game the Boston Redskins shut out the Chicago Cardinals 10 to 0. A touchdown by Battles and a field goal and extra point by Musick made the score.

Brown Derbies Helped Carnegie Beat Notre Dame

Pittsburgh ,Oct. 23—(AP)— Out at Carnegie Tech they give credit where credit is due, but the more superstitious among the Tartan followers are inclined to believe that those derby hats the coaches wear have a great deal to do with the success of the football team.

Students presented the "hard hats" to Head Coach Howard Harpster and Line Coach Don Lovewell on the opening day of the season, and since that time Tech has triumphed over Temple, Xavier and Notre Dame.

The iron hat is a sort of tradition at Carnegie, for Judge Walter P. Steffen of Chicago, whom Harpster succeeded this year, always wore one as he sat on the Tartan bench and directed the team.

Now the picture of the slim, derby-hatted Harpster, strolling up and down before the bench with his hands in his pockets, has become a familiar, and cheered-to-the echo sight, at Carnegie games.

Incidentally, that old derby-wearer, Steffen himself, was among the 57,000 spectators who saw Tech beat Notre Dame on Saturday—the third Carnegie victory in eleven stares against the Irish.

CARNERA BOOED BY HIS COUNTRYMEN AFTER BOUT

Champion Is Unable To Put Paulino Uzcudun To Sleep

Rome, Oct. 23 —(AP)— Primo Carnera's first heavyweight title defense, successful though it was, added little to the mammoth Italian's prestige in his native land today.

A crowd of 70,000 strongly predisposed in Carnera's favor watched the huge champion punch out a decisive 15-round victory over Paulo Uzcudun, cheered him for a while and then booed him just as heartily in the last two rounds for his failure to stop the 34-year old Spanish veteran of more than ten years' warfare against the world's best heavyweights.

There was no question whatever as to the ultimate winner after the first couple of rounds. Carnera smashed the Basque woodchopper all over the ring with a zipping left and ponderous rights, yet never could floor the rival, whose courage alone carried him through the full 15-round limit.

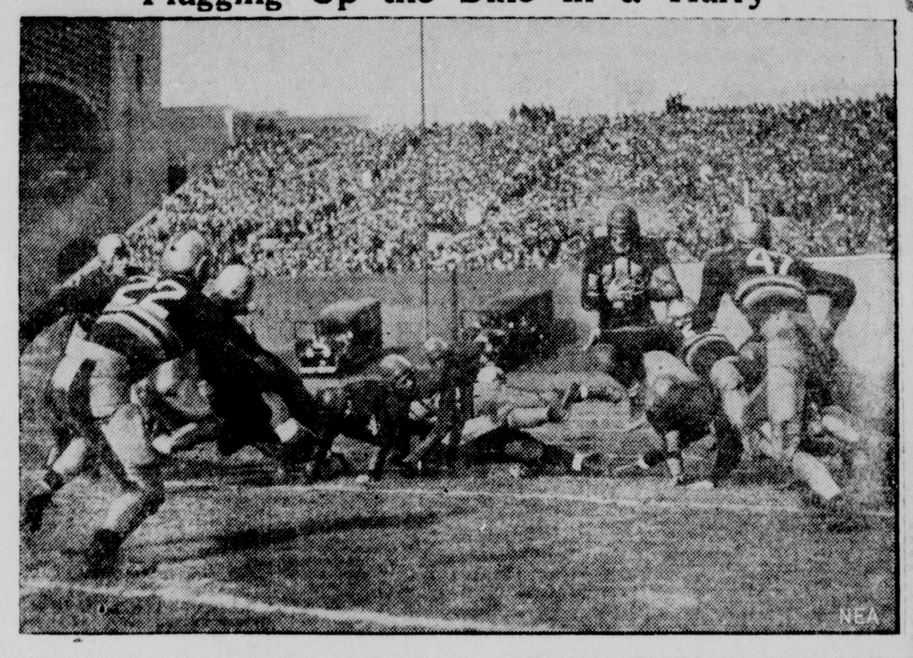

Paulo Can Take It

Of the attributes that once made him feared throughout the heavyweight division, Paulo took with him into this fight only a rock-ribbed chin and the constitution of an ox. He was on the receiving end from the start, his rushes were smothered in the Italian's mighty arms, he was bleeding from the fifth round on, yet he never quit trying, never stopped coming into his bulky opponent, never was floored. At the finish, bloody and bruised, Paulo still was carrying on as aggressively as ever, taking the best Carnera could offer.

The crowd, which included Premier Mussolini, other Fascist officials, and James Roosevelt, eldest son of the American President, couldn't understand how a man could take such a beating and still remain erect. That, perhaps, explained the chorus of boos that greeted Carnera as he vainly sought to bring his small antagonist down.

— ARMY vs. ILLINOIS —

Plugging Up the Dike In a Hurry

Splintering its attack on an Army forward wall that would not give, Illinois turned on its aerial attack too late and took a 6-0 drubbing in its intersectional game with the Cadets at Cleveland. Above, Cook, Illinois fullback, is going through one of the few holes opened up in the Army line in the second quarter. But he was stopped by three Army men, Burlingame, No. 47; Burknam, No. 22, and Beall, No. 26, who are seen closing in on him.

— ARMY vs. ILLINOIS —

Come Down Out Of There!

Staging a second half rally to wipe out the 6-0 lead of the Army in their game at Cleveland, Illinois turned to the air and threw passes all over the field. Here is one of several attempted—and completed—by Illinois, which shows Cook, fullback, catching a heave for a 10-yard gain in the third quarter.

Stopped Game To Hunt A Glass Eye

Chicago—The football game between the Beltwoods of Evanston and Mason Park eleven was halted while officials and players on both sides went hunting for the glass eye of Ben Cohen, 23-year-old guard for the Beltwoods. After a futile search Cohen had to retire and it was not until after the game that the eye was found intact. However, the mishap didn't matter much to the Beltwoods for when it happened they were leading 41 to 0.

Chicago Lad Was Fatally Injured In Sycamore Game

Sycamore—The football game between St. Albans' Academy and Elgin Academy was ended when Ludwig Sunde, Jr., 17, of Chicago, captain and center of the former team received a broken neck and died 15 minutes after being carried from the field. He failed to rise after a line play.
